STATE BANKERS' CONVENTION

Held at Bedford Springs Hotel Friday and Saturday of Last Week.

The annual convention of Pennsylvania State Bankers at Bedford Springs was attended last Friday and Saturday by over 400 delegates. Rev. H. E. Wieand, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, made the opening prayer which was followed by an address by the president, Montgomery Evans of Norristown, who discussed "Banking and the Law." Annual reports of the secretary, D. S. Kloss of Tyone, and the treasurer, A. D. Swift of Ridge way, were then given. Elbert Hubbard of East Aurora, N. Y., publisher of the Philistine and Little Journeys, spoke on "Getting Together" and David Barry, cashier of the First National Bank of Johnstown, made an address entitled "The Adaptability of the Banker." A resolution was adopted urging legislation so that receiverships of failed state banks shall be conducted by the state banking department. Three members of the executive council for the state were elected: Charles A. Caldwell of Philadelphia, William H. Painter of Williamsport and Montgomery Evans of Norristown. A. S. Keymer of Pittsburgh was elected vice president of the State Association and A. S. Douglass of Wilkes-Barre as the Pennsylvania member of the nominating committee.

During the evening the Tyone Shop Band, one of the best bands in this section of the State, gave a fine concert. A large crowd was present to enjoy the music.

The second day's session opened on Saturday with an address by Parker S. Williams, Esq., of Philadelphia on "The Banker's Interest in State Control of Public Utilities." An excellent debate, "Resolved, That appropriate legislation should be enacted prohibiting any person from being an officer or director in more than one banking institution, state or national," was won by the negative speakers, Albert L. Eyer, George Rankin, Jr., and Donald Mullen of Wilkesburg, who, for the third successive year, were presented with the handsome silver cup they now retain. The affirmative speakers were Philadelphiaans.

The trust company section appointed a committee to take up the matter of abolishing the section which was approved by many. A distinguished guest was the national president, Arthur Reynolds of Des Moines, Ia., who spoke on the new currency law.

The following officers were elected: President, L. T. McFadden of Canton, Pa.; Vice President, E. P. Passmore of Philadelphia, and Treasurer, C. J. Nieman of Leechburg.

The game of ball during the afternoon was won by the Western Bankers, the score being 15-14. A vaudeville and smoker were the events of the evening.

A pleasant outing of the Altoona Tribune force and friends on Saturday was made sad by the drowning of one of their company, Edgar B. Knisel. The picnic was being held at Pennsylvania Furnace, the party being guests of Mr. Shoemaker, president of the Tribune Company. During the morning games of various kinds were played by a number, while several others, who expected to enter the swimming contests, etc., went boating. Several men, among whom was Mr. Knisel, were in one boat, and after going some distance, began swimming. After swimming a little while they returned to the boat. Several of the party stood up in it and a quantity of water rushed in. They began to rock the craft which overturned. Knisel was apparently seized with cramp and before he could be recovered, drowned. Frank Kolbenschlag, another one of the party was completely overcome and was rescued by Ralph Amos, of this place, who is employed as an ad compositor on The Tribune.

Henry Miller

Henry Miller, aged 80 years, proprietor of the Brunswick Hotel, Cumberland, died last Saturday morning, following an illness of several months. He was a former resident of Hyndman, where for years he was proprietor of the Commercial Hotel.

He is survived by his wife and four sons: Richard and William of Jamestown, Ind., Albert E. of Hyndman and Joseph Miller of Cumberland.

Short funeral services were conducted at the Brunswick Hotel, Cumberland, Monday afternoon, after which the body was brought to Hyndman, where interment was made.

In the preceding year, which comprised eleven and one-half months of operations, the earnings were equal to 4.70 per cent on $7,356,200 common stock then outstanding.—George Albert Johnson in Chicago Record.

THE PRESIDENT HECKLED

By Suffragettes—Mr. Wilson was Courteous But Firm.

Washington, June 30.—Because he refused in unqualified, yet courteous language, this afternoon to endorse the proposed amendment to the Federal Constitution giving women the right to vote, President Wilson was heckled, "spoofed" and hissed by many in a small army of suffragists. President Wilson made plain his opposition to Federal action. He received the heckling in the East Room of the White House where at 2:15 o'clock he met seven hundred white-gowned, but determined women, representatives of suffrage organizations in every State of the Union.

The heckling and "spoofing" came following the President's announcement that he deemed the question one for States to settle and that it was not a national matter. He did reply to one or two questions, but while in the midst of an answer to another several interrogations were hurled at him from different parts of the room.

The President upon this outburst, turned on his heel, and escorted by his military aide, Colonel Hartz, and the secret service operatives, left the room. As he stepped into the corridor from the East Room the doors were closed between him and his angry petitioners.

Daughters Present

Witnessing the scene in the East Room were Secretary Tumulty, Secretary and Mrs. McAdoo and Miss Margaret Wilson, the President's eldest daughter. There were also a number of sightseers in the room, some of whom were mothers with children by their sides. During the heckling one lusty-lunged youngster let out a wail. It served to break the constant volley of questions which had been discharged at the President. The wail created a laugh among the onlookers.

75 BINDERS IN ONE ORDER

Concordia Made a Parade of a Record Delivery of Machines.

Concordia, Kans., June 30.—What is believed to be a record delivery of binders in this State, or any State, was made here when one firm alone sent out 75 machines to the farmers of Cloud County. A feature of the delivery was a parade on the main street of Concordia, led by the band and the owners of the binders proudly driving through the streets.

The binders and horses were decorated with American flags. The parade was eight blocks in length and it is probably the first sight of this kind in any town in the wheat belt and it shows what a monstrous wheat crop the farmers of Cloud County will reap next week when harvest will be on in earnest.

This delivery is from only one firm in the city and so much encouraged are the makers, the John Deere Company, that they have decided to establish a distributing point in this city for this entire section of Kansas.

BIG REAL ESTATE TRANSFER

F. E. Colvin, Esq., Purchases Johnstown Property for $130,000.

One of Bedford County's well known attorneys, Frank E. Colvin, has purchased what is known in Johnstown as the Dibert property on Main and Franklin Streets of that city for a consideration of $130,000. The building faces 29 feet on Main Street and extends back 30 feet on Franklin. It is in the heart of the business section and one of the most traveled corners in the city. It is considered by real estate men, as well as all business men, that Attorney Colvin has made a very good investment, since real estate in Johnstown has been climbing high ever since the flood in '89.

Mr. Colvin authorizes the statement that he made the purchase for himself, and was not acting as agent for any one else. W. C. Smith, formerly of Belden, Bedford Township, has a five-year lease on the property which expires next April. Mr. Smith conducts his shoe store in the building and sublets to other tenants. Mr. Colvin says that at the expiration of the present lease, a new one for five years will likely be made. We congratulate our able attorney on his expansion and foresight in an investment which has received so hearty approval for wisdom and frugality by the general public.

English Editor on Roosevelt

The characteristic British opinion of "Theodore Roosevelt" is expressed in an editorial in the London Standard, which, referring to the Salem Fire, contrasts Hawthorne's Salem and the modern city, and adds: "America has its Woodrow Wilson as well as its Roosevelt; the spirit of Hawthorne's Salem is not dead in the land."

"If Roosevelt is a typical American so is President Wilson," the Standard continues.

"Roosevelt may be seen, a little debased, in those Americans who insist on being at the front, whose capacity for grumbling in a high pitched voice is unlimited, and who are not very particular as to their feet and elbows, so long as they can stride or elbow themselves to the best seats. President Wilson stands for those other Americans who are the spiritual descendants of Emerson and Hawthorne. They are modest and gentle in manner and reserved in behavior. You don't grow familiar with them at once, and never will make friends with them if you greet them with hail-fellow-well-met boisterousness. They shrink from smoking room stories, and they don't ask you the price of your boots. So, although the Salem of Hawthorne was destroyed long before this fire, it left its mark in America. There may be more luxury in America than in any other country in the world. There certainly is more Puritanism, but this Puritanism is not mere mock modesty. It is sound living, high thinking and cultivated restraint in word and deed."

New Enterprise

June 30.—Rev. White's lectures on "Social Purity," which he delivered in our churches on Sunday, were well attended and highly appreciated. He handled his subject without gloves, and at the same time in such a pure and attractive manner that no one could take offense. Persons of any community who can secure his services may consider themselves very fortunate.

John Hetrick, Sr., of Waterside came to New Enterprise Sunday afternoon to attend the lecture for "men only." Arriving at the church before the hour for services and after tying his horse he started to walk into Gilbert Working's when he suddenly staggered backwards and fell to the ground. He attempted to rise but was unsuccessful and in a few minutes breathed his last. Mr. Hetrick was one of our oldest and most highly respected citizens. The people of the community will mourn their loss.

Mrs. Jessie Snyder and daughter Grace of Snake Spring Valley spent Saturday and Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Guyer.

Mrs. Weaverling of Everett was visiting friends in our town last week.

Ira Detwiler, one of our merchants, was wearing an exceptionally broad smile yesterday. It was later discovered that his wife had returned from an extended visit with friends in Johnstown and Erie.

George Hoover, one of Loysburg's enterprising merchants, and Miss Alie Breidenthal, a very estimable young lady of near the same place, quietly left the vicinity a few days ago and returned man and wife. The townspeople tendered them a very hearty but possibly not a very appreciative reception on their return. Both young and old turned out en masse to the serenading. They took the bride and groom in an old spring wagon, which was furnished with plenty of hay for a cushion, and some half dozen men who acted as guards of honor, one of whom carried a lantern to illuminate their beaming countenances. They joined the parade which was headed by several dozen boys who carried bells, old tin pans and anything with which they could make a noise. Next after the bride and groom's carriage was a hay wagon laden with all the humanity it would hold. That was followed by an automobile and quite a string of carriages. They marched to New Enterprise where they stopped long enough for the bride and groom to receive the large number who turned out to witness the novelty. The married folks congratulated themselves that they would not likely need to pass through a similar ordeal again.

Reiley-Fulton

On Wednesday morning, June 24, our popular District Attorney hiked away to Harrisburg with one of Saxton's popular young ladies, Miss Edna Fulton, and had the matrimonial knot tied by one of our state capital's ministers. The tidings were a surprise to their friends, who, with the Gazette, wish them the greatest happiness on their "united we stand" adventure.

The groom is a native of Napier Township, Bedford County, a young lawyer of a lucrative practice, and District Attorney of this county since 1911. He is a son of W. E. Reiley and was admitted to the bar in 1897. His many friends and clients were agreeably surprised to find his leave of absence written on the door step of his office, "Out of Town Getting Married."

The bride is a favorite Saxton lady who has been teaching in Bedford Borough since her graduation at Shippensburg in 1910. Her father is T. C. Fulton of Saxton.

Ray Hillegass of Philadelphia. Rev. J. C. Powell of Hyndman was the officiating minister. Miss Sarah Blackburn, sister of the bride, and Edgar Griffith were their attendants.

Mr. Hillegass is a graduate of the Pennsylvania Business College and is employed by the U. S. Steel Corporation, Philadelphia. Mrs. Hillegass is a graduate of West Chester State Normal and has been a very successful teacher in this county. They will be at home after July 10 at Glenolden, Pa.

The ladies of the M. E. Church at Queen contemplate holding an ice cream festival Saturday evening, July 4. Everybody is invited.

The ball game played here on Saturday between the Queen Station and East Freedom teams was won by Queen.

LICENSE LEAGUE PRESIDENT

Finds Evil in Prohibition—Says Treating Is a Curse.

To the Editor of The North American. (Issue of June 29, 1914.)

As a seeker after truth I am sure that The North American will not ignore or fail to consider certain conclusions that I would like to offer in regard to the prohibition movement.

I have studied the liquor problem carefully for more than thirty years and I find, for one thing, that where the laws are most liberal in regard to the sale of alcoholic beverages the least intemperance prevails, and that where the laws are most drastic the greater amount of intemperance prevails.

I have found very little excessive drinking in France, Germany, Switzerland and other European countries where cafes abound in cities and villages and along the country roads, and where a drink can be secured every day in the week, but I have found much intemperance in Scotland and in Canada and in such States as Pennsylvania, where the Sunday laws are rigidly enforced and where the traffic is ruled with an iron hand.

It is my conclusion that excessive drinking is due principally to the treating habit and very largely to suggestion.

The suggestion that Sunday is a desert, so far as drinks are concerned, fills the streets of Scotland with intoxicated men on Saturday nights, and the same is largely true in all other countries and States where the sale of a drink is forbidden on the Sabbath day.

The sign "Last Chance" hanging before saloons in the outskirts of large cities persuades many a man to take a drink, or perhaps several, which he would not have taken but for the suggestion that it is his last chance to get a drink.

"Treating" a Curse

The treating habit, however, has become a curse to American people and a menace to the legalized liquor traffic. This habit may arise from a spirit of hospitality, but it has been so dreadfully abused and degraded that it deserves the condemnation of all good citizens. I am thoroughly convinced that 90 per cent. of intemperance in this country is due to men being persuaded to take drinks that they do not want, and this habit is unquestionably responsible for many a working man spending his week's wages and becoming intoxicated when his intention was to take a single drink before going home.

The so-called prohibition wave that is passing over the country is really a protest against intemperance rather than against liquor, and its ultimate result may be to compel a solution of this great problem which so directly affects the welfare of society.

The problem will not, however, be solved by prohibitory legislation. The people of this country are a drinking people, as is shown by the fact that during the last fiscal year they consumed 140,418,289 gallons of distilled spirits, and 2,022,611,876 gallons of fermented liquors, in addition to which they consumed over 50,000,000 gallons of native wines; an enormous amount of imported whisky, brandy, wine, ale, etc., and a very large amount of moonshine whisky, and it is a safe conclusion that they will not permit a law to interfere with their habits in this particular.

Of course, we have a number of so-called prohibition States and a very great number of so-called prohibition counties, but they are not prohibition at all because liquors can be shipped into such territory in conformity to law just the same as they can be shipped into licensed territory, the only difference being that in licensed territory the shipments are made to dealers and in the so-called prohibition territory shipments are made to consumers.

"Prohibition Campaigns Expensive"

These so-called prohibition com-

FIRST DOSE ENDS INDIGESTION, HEARTBURN, OR GAS ON STOMACH

The question as to how long you are going to continue to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or out-of-order stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking Tonaline Tablets.

People with weak stomachs should take Tonaline Tablets occasionally, and there will be no more indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, sour risings, gas on stomach, or belching of undigested food, headaches, dizziness or sick stomach; and besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors. All these symptoms resulting from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved five minutes after taking Tonaline Tablets.

Go to your druggist and get a $1 box of Tonaline Tablets and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. Tonaline Tablets freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.

WHEN YOU ARE NERVOUS

you have the first symptom of a run-down system, and nervous people too often conceal their aches and pains and suffer in silence, while, if neglected, this condition often foreruns more serious trouble. If those so afflicted would stop taking medicine containing alcohol or drugs which menace the foundations of health, and just take the pure, strengthening nourishment in Scott's Emulsion, it would create new blood to pulsate through the organs, refresh their bodies and build up the whole nervous system. It is rich, sustaining nourishment, free from wines, alcohols or drugs. Shun substitutes.

Paigms are proving very expensive to this country as the men who are managing them are collecting millions of dollars each year from the people and because they are destroying an enormous amount of private property for which there is no compensation provided, and because they are turning the people away from the churches since the churches have become political factors.

Perhaps it might be argued that the people would not care for the expense if the movement was putting a stop to the use of alcoholic beverages, but the fact is that prohibition is not intended to prohibit, and our so-called prohibitory laws are carefully drawn so that they will not prohibit, and there is not the slightest question that the whole prohibitory movement would not stop if the laws were made to prohibit.

The State of Mississippi recently passed an act amending its so-called prohibitory law and from this act I quote as follows:

Section 11. That nothing in this act shall make it unlawful:

1. For any person, for the use of himself or for special use in his home or the members of his family residing with him to personally carry and transport to his own home such intoxicating liquor in quantities not exceeding one gallon.

2. For any person to order and have shipped and delivered to him from without the State, for his own use or for social use in his home, or for the use of the members of his family residing with him, such intoxicating liquors in quantities not exceeding one gallon, of malt liquor not exceeding one keg or cask of beer.

This reservation in favor of the consumer is peculiar to all our State-wide prohibitory laws, and to all our local option enactments, and it completely nullifies these laws, in so far as the purchase and use of wine, beer, whisky, etc., is concerned.

Imagine a bill introduced into the Legislature of Connecticut providing that "It shall be unlawful in the future to make or sell guns, pistols or firearms in Connecticut, but it shall not be unlawful for any person to order and have shipped from another State for his own use or the use of his family or friends one or more guns or pistols."

What would be thought of the sanity of a man introducing so destructive and yet so ridiculous a piece of legislation, and what would be thought of the common sense of a Legislature enacting such a law? And yet the entire plea of the Anti-Saloon League and of the W. C. T. U. and other so-called temperance organizations is for the passage of laws that will destroy breweries, distilleries, wholesalers and retailers, and revenues and yet will reserve to the individual the right to send across the border and order as much beer and whisky as desired for his own use or for the entertainment of his friends.

The present prohibition wave has extended over a period of nearly eighteen years, and here are some of the results:

The consumption of whisky per annum has increased from 60,635,356 gallons to 140,418,289 gallons.

The consumption of beer has increased per annum from 1,110,609,038 gallons to 2,022,611,876 gallons.

The per capita consumption of whisky per annum has increased from .86 to 1.44 gallons and the per capita consumption of beer per annum has increased from 15.56 to 20.81 gallons.

These figures show conclusively that our so-called prohibitory laws are not prohibiting, but I can state advisedly that the liquor shipped into prohibition territory is immeasurably inferior to that which is shipped into licensed territory.

As to the effect of prohibitory laws on the morals, health, sanity, happiness and prosperity of the people, the figures of the United States census bureau furnish very damaging testimony.

Comparing Notes

Let us take the States of Maine and Kentucky and compare some of the figures:

Church membership in Maine, 29.8; Church membership in Kentucky, 37.

Death rate in Maine, per thousand, 16.1.

Death rate in Kentucky, per thousand, 13.2.

Paupers in Maine, per hundred thousand, 127.3.

Paupers in Kentucky, per hundred thousand, 64.5.

Insanity in Maine, per hundred thousand, 169.5.

Insanity in Kentucky, per hundred thousand, 154.5.

Divorces for cruelty in Maine, during five years, 484.

Divorces for cruelty in Kentucky, during five years, 3,763.

Maine, however, has only one-third the population of Kentucky, so if we allow an equal population we alter the figures of Maine to 14,532; Kentucky, 3,763.

Divorces due to intemperance in Maine, 2,166 for five years.

Divorces due to intemperance in Kentucky, 1,577 for five years.

Allowing for the difference in population, Maine's percentage of divorces is 20.8 and Kentucky only 8.7.

I have studied the prohibition question from every standpoint and, so far as I can discover, it has proved an absolute failure as a reform movement, whatever may be said of it as a means of raising large sums of money or as a means of holding the lash over the law makers in our various States.

I think it is a safe conclusion that men are better for being free men and that laws of a sumptuary nature invariably fail to bring about the result desired.

What is known as the liquor problem must be solved, but it will be solved by education, evolution and example, and by the proper regulation of the liquor traffic, which traffic can more easily be encouraged to obey law than compelled to obey law.

A Code of Advertising Ethics

These principles were laid down at the Associated Advertising Club's meeting at Toronto:

Protection against deceptive or dishonest advertising, to sell advertising only on the basis of honest circulation rates as uniform as possible, no advertising antagonistic to public welfare, co-operation between newspapers in maintaining these standards. These are good principles, but they can not be enforced without co-operation of the public.

Many newspapers, particularly those located closely to the stock exchanges, persist in admitting notices of obviously fraudulent get-rich-quick schemes. Plantations in South America, unworked mining claims, a host of such rainbows allure the general public. They consume the scanty cash of struggling widows, school teachers and ministers. No questions are asked by the majority of metropolitan papers.

The manager who admits three card monte to his advertising will fake news stories to make his paper interesting. Also he will sell his editorial column for cash. People who want to know what happens in the world, and who wish honest opinions, will avoid that type of journal.

A New Cotton in America

Farm and Fireside says: "Arizona cotton growers must be feeling jubilant. They have produced about two thousand bales of Egyptian long-staple cotton—a new product in America. They have succeeded in selling at a price which nets the growers in the Salt River Valley 21½ cents a pound. The farmers there expect to grow only the one variety henceforth."

Now let's ship the A-B-C diplomats over to Ulster.

We wouldn't think of questioning Roosevelt's claim that he discovered a "new river" in Brazil, but really the Colonel ought to record the age of the infant."

Soft, Fluffy Hair Aids Beauty and Personality

Girls and women of all ages want to be charming, beautiful and attractive—it's their birthright—but singy, thin and lifeless hair destroys half the beauty of a pretty face.

If your hair is not beautiful, is falling out, streaky, full of dandruff, too dry, or if the scalp itches and burns, use Parisian Sage. Rub it well into the scalp. It will go right to the hair roots, nourish them, and stimulate the hair to grow strong and luxuriant. Parisian Sage removes dandruff with one application cools and invigorates the scalp and makes the hair doubly beautiful.

Parisian Sage is a scientifically made preparation that gives the hair just what is needed to make it soft, fluffy, thick and gloriously radiant. It is inexpensive, and can be had from any druggist or from F. W. Jordan, Jr.—Adv. 26 June 2.

"NEW CONSTITUTION OF FREEDOM"

President Wilson in speaking to a group of Virginia editors that a new era is promised to business of the United States, states emphatically that the administration knows exactly what it is doing. After the passage of the Anti-Trust bills the country will have the greatest business boom in history, he says.

The speech in part follows:

"I think it is appropriate, in receiving you to say just a word or two in assistance of your judgment about the existing conditions. You are largely responsible for the state of public opinion. You furnish the public with information and in your editorials you furnish it with the interpretation of that information. We are in the presence of a business situation which is variously interpreted. Here in Washington, through the Bureau of Commerce and other instrumentalities that are at our disposal and through a correspondent which comes in to us from all parts of the nation, we are perhaps in a position to judge of the actual condition of business better than those can judge who are at any single point in the country; and I want to say to you that as a matter of fact the signs of a very strong business revival are becoming more and more evident from day to day."

"I want to suggest this to you: Business has been in a feverish and apprehensive condition in this country for more than ten years; I will not stop to point out the time at which it began to be apprehensive, but during more than ten years business has been the object of sharp criticism in the United States, a criticism growing in volume and growing in particularity; and as a natural consequence as the volume of criticism has increased business has grown more and more anxious. On all hands it is admitted that there are processes of business or have been processes of business in this country which ought to be corrected; but the correction has been postponed, and in proportion to the postponement the fever has increased—the fever of apprehension."

Guessing Soon Ended

"There is nothing more fatal to business than to be kept guessing from month to month and from year to year whether something serious is going to happen to it or not, and what in particular is going to happen to it, if anything does. It is impossible to forecast the prospects of any line of business unless you know what the year is going to bring forth. Nothing is more unfair, nothing has been declared by business men to be more harmful, than to keep them guessing."

"The guessing went on, the air was full of interrogation points, for ten years and more. Then came an administration which for the first time had a definite program of constructive correction; not of destructive correction, but of a constructive correction of admitted evil—a very clear program, disclosed so far as possible in a general program, in its particulars as well as in its general features. And the administration proceeded to carry out this program."

"First, there was the tariff, and business shivered. 'We don't like to go in; the water looks cold,' but when the tariff had been passed it was found that the readjustment was possible without any serious disturbance whatever. So that men said with a sense of relief, 'Well, we are glad to get that behind us, and it wasn't bad after all.'"

"Then came the currency reform. You remember with what resistance, with what criticism, with what systematic holding back, a large body of bankers in this country met the proposals of that reform, and you know how, immediately after its passage, they recognized its benefit and its beneficence, and how ever since the passage of that reform bankers throughout the United States have been congratulating themselves that it was possible to carry out this great reform upon sensible and solid lines."

"Then we advanced to the trust program and again the same dread, the same hesitation, the same urgency that the thing should be postponed. It will not be postponed; and it will not be postponed because we are the friends of business. We know what we are doing; we purpose to do it under the advice, for we have been fortunate enough to obtain the advice of men who understand the business of the country; and we know that the effect is going to be exactly what the effect of the currency reform was, a sense of relief and of security."

"Because when the program is finished, it is finished; the interrogation points are rubbed off the slate; business is given its constitution of freedom and is bidden go forward under that constitution. And just so soon as it gets that leave and freedom, there will be a boom of business in this country such as we have never witnessed in the United States."

"I, as a friend of business and a servant of the country, would not dare stop in this program and bring on another long period of agitation. Agitation longer continued would be fatal to the business of this country."

"I suffered habitually from constipation. Doan's Regulents relieved and strengthened the bowels so that they have been regular ever since."—E. Davis, Grocer, Sulphur Springs, Texas.—Adv.

The new house of John Winegardner was struck by lightning Saturday night, badly shattering the weatherboarding and plastering. It passed through under Mr. and Mrs. Winegardner's bed, ran down the stove pipe, knocking the pipe across the room. A clock was shaken from a shelf, breaking it to pieces, and passed to the cellar at two places. Mr. and Mrs. Winegardner were slightly shocked but got up right away and went to another room to see about their two sons who were quietly sleeping and knew nothing of what was going on. They say that there was plenty of blue smoke and a peculiar odor but no fire. It was lucky that no one was injured and that the house did not catch fire.

In the first six months of 1914 the Pennsylvania Railroad placed 349 employees on the pension roll—Roll of Honor, it is called. Nineteen of these railroad men had worked for the railroad more than 50 years, while 147 had been in its active service more than 40 years.

Since the Pennsylvania Railroad's retirement plan was established on January 1, 1900, the railroad has paid out of its treasury in pensions to its employees $10,017,978.48, and 8,093 have been placed on the Company's Roll of Honor; 3,957 of these have died, so that there are living today on the Railroad Roll of Honor 4,136 employees.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

BRIEF AND BREEZY

President Wilson stated a great truth when he said it is as hard to do one's duty in the face of sneers as it is in the face of bullets. It is always proper to criticize the President or any other official when there is just cause, but when a man has the crushing burdens to bear that is now the lot of the President, it is small, mean and contemptible for any newspaper man or editor to indulge in sneers or ridicule. Argument and reason only are permissible and decent.

William Easter, 113 W. Penn St., Bedford, Pa., says: "Some years ago I had a very severe attack of lumbago. My back was so lame that I could hardly get around. I suffered greatly and my kidneys were very sluggish colored. I used a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and they acted promptly in removing all traces of the lumbago and soreness in my back and cleared up the kidney secretions. I haven't suffered since. I have told many of my friends what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for me."

A Second Statement

HECKERMAN LETTER

The Last Night in West Virginia That Booze Could be Sold.

Wheeling, W. Va., July 1.—I have heard it said that the "Smallest man is made the goat when fortune does the ranking."

The smallest boy is always sure to get the biggest spanking."

So Mose Lippel, at least, thought the time Dr. Aughinbaugh whipped him for hanging the big tom cat.

"And thus it is from boyhood on until the close of life;

The smallest man is always sure to get the biggest wife.

And now what have you to say, Mr. L.?

Only this: To show you how fortune plays us many tricks and vile.

The smallest man in many ways still has the biggest pile.

Read Mr. Lippel's ads in The Gazette and be convinced of the truth of the foregoing.

Last night was the last one for anyone in West Virginia to sell booze. My quenched their thirst with buttermilk and old John Barleycorn. Victor in many a hard fought battle with humanity went down, for at sunset, June 30, 1914, with none so poor to do him reverence, his demise was accomplished. At sunset all the cities and towns in West Virginia became a veritable Sahara.

The majority of the big up town saloons, I was told, not only quit selling early in the evening but they also closed and barred their doors.

A few, however, I was told, remained open through the night but nothing passed over their bars except soda pop, coca-cola, and last, but not least, buttermilk.

As the evening was a most delightful one and I felt better than usual, I joined the army of detectives, but we did not see or detect that peculiar odor which booze leaves behind. The usual noisy crowd that assembles in front of bar-rooms failed to make its appearance last night. Not even the baseball returns attracted them.

Of course there were a few who gathered about their usual haunts, but I'll wager my fifty cent watch that there were many more men sitting on their front steps than on any week day evening in an age.

The situation and the short talks one could not help but hear as they walked along were certainly very amusing and many a country man got tongue lashed because they voted the State dry. The conversation on the streets was certainly very humorous.

"Dis sho am awful, I done bin all around and I can't find nuffin."

"Sholey you can get something at Sol Cohen's."

"No, nuttin down, I done bin there." These were some of the speeches dished out of the ordinary run of the conversation around the B. and O. depot. The four hundred pound black bartender was kept busy informing the inquiring ones that there was nothing doing. "I've got plenty of sulphur water and soda pop, gemmen," he said. The Bismark Hotel bar, while brilliantly lighted up, was absolutely barren of visitors during the night. However, most of those elegantly furnished bars were lighted up yet not a drink was served save which came within the law. The saloon men for some days have been unloading their stocks of liquors of all kinds to their customers and to any one who had the wherewith and who would buy. The law making West Virginia a dry State does not forbid you from receiving a drink for good fellowship from your friend, if you go to call on him, but he dare not sell it. I wonder whether this law will be any more effective than that of Tennessee. 'Tis said to be more stringent than that of any of the States which had voted dry in the years gone by. For instance, Middleboro, Ky., with 45 saloons and places where booze is sold under license, they load a train each morning with the stuff and take it to Knoxville, Tenn., sixty miles away. Tennessee is a dry State.

I have never seen so many and such beautiful roses as on this trip.

Oh those nice, bright and fragrant flowers remind me that this old world we're living in is mighty hard to beat; we get a thorn with every rose, but ain't the roses sweet?

Yours truly, M. P. Heckerman.

Peculiar Order. There is much in a name. A ship belonging to a man named Heaven was due to sail from Cardiff with a cargo of coals, when it was discovered that she had not received her full loading. The shipping agent startled his clerk with the command—"Telegraph to Heaven for more coals."

Some Men Have It All. A lucky shopkeeper at Brunswick, who accepted a lottery ticket as payment for a hat from an impecunious customer, won a prize of $70,000 in the lottery.

PROSPERITY PICKINGS

There are pessimists in the commercial world, but more especially in the political world, who apparently insist upon closing their eyes to the cheerful news that fills the columns of the daily papers these days. Strangely enough, some of these pessimists sit in the editorial chairs of the papers that are printing this cheerful news.

The Public Ledger, of Philadelphia, one of the staid and conservative papers of the east, which is bitterly opposing the Wilson administration, has contained in the last ten days the following headlines:

"Business Revival Felt by Merchants; Buying 35% Heavier Than Last Year."

"More Cheerful About Business."

"Work For Idle Men."

"Change Drops Talk of Sluggish Trade; Ease of Money, Excellent Outlook, Hope of Railroad Rate Adjustment, and New Banking System Stimulate Market."

"Week's Car Orders Press Steel Mills."

"Report Trade Improvement; Master Plumbers Tell of Improved Conditions."

"Steel Pipe Orders Encourage Trade."

"Trade Conditions Improve; Delegates of the Eastern Supply Association See Busy Fall Season Ahead."

"West Sees No Sign of Pending Panic; Bank Clearances Indicate General Conditions Around Sound Basis."

"Crop Indications Forecast Prosperous Year in State."

"Money and Crops Both Plentiful; Share Prices Advance; Gold Outflow Harmless."

"Master Mechanics Hear of Trade Boom; Association in Convention Told of Prosperity; Car Builders Contradicted."

"July Dividend and Interest Disbursements Gain Over 1913."

"Ore Shipments Increase; Lake Superior Iron Business Shows Signs of Life."

"Crops Boom Business. Chicago Feels Impetus of Coming Surplus of Ready Cash."

"Locomotive and Car Sales Enliven Steel Business."

June 18th. "Business Conditions Are Reported as Improving." "Prosperous Era Predicted; James J. Hill, of the Great Northern Railroad; A. J. Barling, President of the St. Paul; M. W. Hughtit, President of the North western, and S. M. Felton, President of the Great Western, Speak Optimistically of Outlook."

"Railroads Order Cars; Contracts Placed for 50,000 Tons of Steel."

"Steel Mills Encouraged by Rolled Product Sales."

"Factories in Full Blast."

June 21st. "Think Wheat Sales Spell Prosperity, Trade Better."

The Philadelphia Inquirer (Penrose Organ) admits on June 22d, in its "Financial Columns," that the big crops mean inevitable prosperity, while the Philadelphia Press, another standpat calamity howler, in its "Business Columns" on the same day, reports that the "Iron and Steel Movement is Good," and that "Sentiment Continues Good."

The same paper reports that the principal iron and steel interest has received orders of about 5000 tons a day in excess of last month.

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

Vance McCormick put Harrisburg on the map as a municipality. He is likely to do the same thing for Harrisburg as the Capitol City of the Commonwealth.

Was it State employees who sent out 50,000 Penrose pamphlets from the offices of the Livestock Sanitary Board at the State Capitol just before the primary election?

After all, this delay in announcing the platform of the Republican machine candidates may be due only to the effort to find some excuse for making Bill Crow Chairman of the State Committee.

Standard Oil Foraker and Standard Oil Penrose are both having hard sledding in their effort to join the "Come Back Club." Their old college chum, Lorimer, also seems to be in some difficulty out in Illinois.

It was Crow who killed the Workmen's Compensation Bill, crippled the Women's Labor Act, and smothered the Child Labor legislation at the last session of the Legislature. He is Penrose's logical choice for Chairman.

Speaking of expense accounts, the Penrose Protective Union hasn't yet filed its account. These protected manufactory are our most accomplished little dodgers when it comes to the election laws of the Commonwealth.

Palmer and McCormick seem to like the political going these days. While Penrose and Brumbaugh are praying for a panic, and are hopeless unless it comes, and while Pinchot and Lewis are waiting for Roosevelt's throat to be healed, Palmer and McCormick are relying upon the inevitable results of Democratic government at Washington and upon the solid confidence of the independent citizens of Pennsylvania. No wonder they do not worry

FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 3, 1914.

Peace in Mexico? Of course, when there are no more left to fight.

Even a fool can observe a sane Fourth.

Heavens! Just listen to this! Noted surgeons are warning the public against needless operations.

A last year's straw hat makes one think the wearer has robbed a dray horse.

West Virginia is now on the Dry list. The state song is "How Dry We Are."

"T. R. Plunges Into Politics," says a newspaper headline. Is this another River of Doubt?

In California women are running for office, and in London men are running from women.

The government is encouraging farmers to establish fish ponds. Is Uncle Sam looking for a place to dump Congress?

We'll have another war scare tomorrow. Japan has opened up negotiations over the California land scrap.

The United States will investigate the Lorimer Bank crash in Chicago. Of course. After the horse is stolen it is time to padlock the stable door.

If King Peter has in reality abdicated the throne of Servia he will go unwept, unhonored, unsung and unhung.

It is quite the fad now to have your wedding gown remodeled into a divorce suit.

Forget the Empress of Ireland. It is quite time for another boat to take a plunge.

"Hypocrites perform the devils drudgery," says a wise man. And for whom does his Satanic Majesty perform a like service?

"Forty-five hundred killed in battle at the taking of Zazatecas," is the word from Mexico. If this keeps up Villa will soon have to import a few armies for opponents, or go out of the war business.

Why shouldn't President Wilson feel peeved because a shave tail lawyer cussed him on the golf links? If you were President of all of these great and glorious and rich and prosperous United States wouldn't you feel your importance just a wee little bit?

There are times when ammunition is worth almost its weight in gold. This is amply illustrated in the case of the Constitutionalist army in Mexico, where it is an offense punishable by death for a soldier to waste even a single cartridge in killing a pigeon.

A "calamity howler," and a store keeper, was complaining of hard times. In answer to a question he replied that his store receipts were greater the past year than the year preceding. When asked how he figured dull times from his business, he replied that his business didn't show any hard times.

It is solemnly announced that peace is certain between the United States and Mexico. Just so. And when did the war commence, and where was it fought, and who did the fighting, and what were the casualties, and who was the conqueror, and—and—and—say, did we have a war?

Make the use of explosives on the Fourth a matter of care and precaution. No reason for having any accidents. Every grown person and every child of any age knows that dynamite and gunpowder will injure if you are near enough. Set the fuse and get away until the thing explodes. If the mechanism is slow wait a good, sufficient time for it to act before approaching to investigate. Don't pick an explosive and blow at it to revive a fire. People get their faces burned or eyes blown out just that way. Ten to twenty minutes is a safe time to leave a dead one lay before investigating. Take the necessary precaution and you can have a very pleasant Fourth.

The stock gamblers of Wall Street are a marvelously thick-headed lot. They tried to bluff the President from putting through free wool and free sugar—and failed. They were the Samsons who were going to pull the temple down upon the currency bill—and not a pillar tottered. And now they are yelling panic if the President insists upon giving business a solid underpinning by forcing through the trust bills—but we understand.

IS RELIEF IN SIGHT?

Congress is taking up the matter of good roads, and a bill has been practically agreed upon which provides for the raising of a highway fund for the issue of 3 per cent. government bonds.

This money is to be loaned to the States, which are to deposit in the United States treasury their own bonds bearing 4 per cent. interest as security. The States would use the money thus obtained in the building of better roads throughout the country.

If there is anything on earth that is needed in this country it is better roads. Our public highways are a disgrace to civilization. They are the worst of any country on earth which makes any pretensions of advancement.

Congress has legislated for years in behalf of almost everyone it could think of, except the man from the country. Billions of the public money have been spent, and millions of that have been more or less a useless extravagance. The pork barrel has always been open to the politicians.

But now let us hope a belated grain of common sense has at last permeated the brains of the gentlemen who represent us at Washington.

If they afford us the means of obtaining better country roads we will cheerfully accord them the credit of earning at least a portion of their salaries.

It is quite time for the man from the country to have his inning.

CLEANLINESS ON RAILROADS

The railroads have had their troubles, which produces an economical point of view. Mops, brooms, and the services of scrub women cost money. Some of the roads, notably the Erie, recently reached a point of desperation where they proposed to omit the washing of car windows, as an emergency measure of retrenchment. They were informed by the Public Utility Commission that clean cars and car windows are necessary to proper service.

Railroads differ greatly. Some of the richer roads conciliate patrons for high fares by a delightful spotlessness. Their toilet rooms shine. Scrubbers are constantly rooting for dirt at the larger stations. It is good business. People do not like to don overalls when they go traveling. The mantle of cleanliness covers many sins.

The majority of the roads are careless. They excuse themselves on the ground that whenever the man with the broom goes along, some tobacco spitter carefully deposits his cud on the floor that has just been cleaned. There is something in that, too.

But a high degree of cleanliness is worth working for. Merchants catering to the general public find the same difficulty with filthy people. But they do not therefore omit to sweep their floors. A dirty store window would drive away trade.

The one compensation for the aches and pains of a railroad journey is the pleasure of looking out of the windows at God's country. An unwashed window neutralizes that pleasure. An unswept floor and unbrushed seats convey an impression of dinginess and discomfort. They are left handed advertising that spells decay. Public service commissions that have made the railroads quit such penny-wise economies confer a benefit on the stockholders.

THE PERIL OF SWEEPING FIRES

No matter how efficient fire departments may be, no matter how complete the equipment of apparatus and water pressure, conditions constantly occur in towns of any size that threaten sweeping fires. Salem, Mass., is the latest victim, with its $20,000,000 blaze.

Such a devastating fire elicits at once the suggestion that many fire perils would be avoided if the American people would depend more on brick, cement, and other fire-proof construction. The wooden house requires a constant expenditure for repairs and paint that makes it costly. Unless well kept up, it soon looks tawdry, and its unattractiveness depreciates its value. Fire proof work may be cheapest in the long run.

Of course insurance rates are low. They may be less than the interest on the additional cost of fire proof work. But when you reflect that insurance rarely pays the total loss, the economy of the wooden house seems doubtful.

Fire proof construction substitutes dignity for flimsiness, and raises the value of real estate in a neighborhood.

Of course the American people will continue to build wooden houses for many years. But at least a stop should be put to the mushroom growths a few feet apart that rise like a bad dream in so many places.

Such crowded residence districts are a damage to any place. They provide no outlet for child life. The pure outdoor air is thick with human contamination. These conditions may not be realized by the average man, but catastrophes like the Salem fire should awaken public sentiment to one of the more obvious dangers. Let people spread out more into the outskirts, secure more space around their dwellings, get lower rents, maintain gardens, lessen insurance and have better sanitary conditions.

LENGTHENING HUMAN LIFE

The present generation of young people should live 15 years longer than their parents. The latter lived 15 years longer than did their ancestors of 100 years previous.

At least this is what Dr. V. C. Vaughn, the new president of the American Medical Association, told that body the past week at their Atlantic City convention.

The death rate was reduced in a century in London, for instance, from 50 per thousand to 24. Twice as many children live to grow up now. It was formerly quite an achievement for a young person to acquire maturity. Small-pox used to kill one in ten of the population.

Still the ordinary observer of human life can hardly believe that the babies of today are going to gain any 15 years. Diseases like cancer, Bright's, heart troubles, are increasing. The science of modern life saves the infants, but the pace of human life kills the old folks.

It is a good deal like a paragraph seen in some paper the other day. A young man was reported as seeking a $5 per week increase of pay and getting it. He immediately telephoned his wife that she could close the deal for another house at an increased rental of $20 a month. Added income means added outgo.

If a man through better science or physical exercise acquires increased strength, he rarely uses it in building up a reserve of resistance against troubles to come. Ordinarily he uses it in speeding up his business pace, so that he can make more money.

What is needed for a greater longevity is not so much more science, as a better spirit of philosophy. It is just as important to live within our physical means, saving up a reservoir of energy against future drains, as to live within our financial means and acquire a bank balance.

ADMINISTRATION SETTLES COAL STRIKE

A settlement of the labor war that has raged in the Kanawha coal fields of West Virginia has been virtually brought about by the Government conciliation commission, acting under the authority of Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Labor.

By the agreement that has been made the employers practically recognize the labor union to which the men belong, and this was the principal point at issue. Only a few unimportant and trivial differences now remain to be adjudicated, which will be the duty of another commission.

This labor struggle was marked by many deaths and destruction of a large amount of property. Armed guards and militia, equipped with machine guns, drove the striking miners to the mountains, where many are said to have starved. The situation became so bad that the United States Senate conducted a special investigation.

Under the arrangement reached the operators agree to recognize the "check-off" system. This makes the employers responsible for the dues of their men to the union.

The question of wages, which is not regarded as serious, is to be taken up by a special commission to be named within ten days. One of the commissioners is to be named by the mine owners, the second by the miners and the third is to be chosen by the two. If the two commissioners fail to agree on the third, he is to be selected by the Secretary of Labor from a list of five names submitted to him.

Secretary Wilson and the administration in Washington are to be highly commended for their successful efforts in bringing about industrial peace in the West Virginia coal fields.

Notice to School Directors

Harrisburg, June 30, 1914.

The annual meeting of school boards will be held on the first Monday of July when it is customary to make provision for putting the school property in proper condition for the work of the coming year. It is false economy to save on the school's physical equipment and lose on the efficiency and character of the pupils. A clean and orderly equipment profoundly influences to clean and orderly living.

At this time the State Board of Education would especially direct the considerate attention of school boards to the following items:

1. Every school property should be thoroughly inspected and conditions noted as to floors, windows, stoves, furnaces and other equipment. Provision should be made for all necessary repairs. Broken window panes should be replaced, and windows adjusted so that they can be readily opened for purposes of ventilation. Porches and porch steps should be put into condition to avoid accident. Worn-out thresholds should be renewed; chimneys, stoves and furnaces should be cleaned and put in good condition for use when school opens in the fall. If interiors need painting, the walls should be colored neutral gray or light buff, and the ceiling an ivory white, which makes a good reflecting surface. Glaring white walls are a positive injury to eyesight, and colors having an excess of blue or green make the room cold and cheerless.

2. Every school-room should have a thorough cleaning before the opening of the next term. The floors and wood-work should be scrubbed; all rubbish removed from the basement, and the walls whitewashed. It may be necessary to house children in an old building, but there is no reason why it should not be made clean and sanitary. The method of supplying drinking water from a pail open to dust and contaminated air should be discarded. Provision should be made for a covered stone tank or other receptacle with a faucet, and, if individual cups are not provided, each pupil should be required to bring his own. The common drinking cup and the common water pail are menaces to good health and in direct violation of the law.

3. Special consideration should be given to outside sanitaries. Many of these out-buildings are thoroughly disgraceful—a menace to health and morals. Perhaps nowhere in the rural school equipment is radical reform so much needed. Where conditions require the use of out-door toilets, they should be substantially built and the entrances properly screened. They should be cleaned and the wastes disposed of. The excreta should be removed from the vaults or covered with earth, lime or sawdust. The law specifically enjoins upon directors the duty of making provision for keeping toilets in a clean and sanitary condition.

Every school-room ought to be made pleasant and home-like. The surroundings ought to be such as to develop good taste and orderliness. Education has no more important object than to develop habits of cleanliness and good order. These materially aid in raising the standards of morality.

One of the "Calamity Howlers"

The "calamity howlers" will probably get little consolation out of the fact that the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company has taken on about 1,000 men in its repair shops to get ready its equipment for handling the grain crops, says the Baltimore Evening Sun. The Pennsylvania shops also are a-bustle, and if the present horde of gloom-generators would do less talking and take a minute to look beyond their noses they would be likely to find the same true of a great many more of the railroads. Things can't be so bad.

We also notice that Mr. Willard, head of the Baltimore & Ohio, is preparing to keep his promise of building a $1,000,000 pier at Curtis Bay, and his ambition is to surpass those for which Norfolk and Newport News are famous. Evidently big business is picking up and not as depressed as a few of our standpatters would lead us to believe.—Cumberland Times.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

LITTLE ODE ON THE DAY OF DAYS

Dedicated to the More or Less Solemn Occasion on Which the Birthday of Great Nation is Fittingly Celebrated.

I
THIS is the day of days;
This is the solemn occasion
On which we raise
Our voices in highest praise
Of those from whom our birthright has descended;
Without considering political persuasion,
Forgetting all the bruises and the smart
Of bitter enmity,
From rancor free,
With thankful hearts,
With every grievance for the moment mended,
And with the ever-sacred, ever-splendid
Emblem of freedom waving high,
We turn awhile from thoughts of gain,
We cast aside the heavy strain,
We cease a little while to sigh
For all the dollars that remain;
We run the stately banner up
And, glad of heart, go in
The special tournament to win
A seven-dollar silver cup.

II
This is the day we celebrate
With undisguised elation
The birth of our glorious nation;
The little and the great,
The high and the humble,
Cease for awhile to grumble
At the whims of fate,
In a strictly sane and sane manner
We hang out our bunting and proceed to raise the banner
That knows no brother;
Forgetting the grievances that sometimes set
Us against one another,
We proudly proceed to let
The eagle scream
A perfectly polite little scream or two,
And then we stream
Forth from our habitations to renew
Our efforts to exceed
The limits which apply to speed
And add new glory to the glorious day
By running over slow, plain people who impede
Our flight by lingering in the way.

III
This is our nation's natal day;
You know, of course, what natal means;
This is the glorious day when they
Who cling to rural scenes
Take off their jeans,
Don Sunday clothes and, claiming proud
elation,
Perspire what time
The sublime
And ever-thrilling Declaration
Is murdered by some local orator.
This is the day when we
Have gracious pity for
Those luckless ones across the sea
Who never have learned the pride of being free.
So let us hasten forth—
East, west and south and north—
Nor cease
To riot in the freedom we possess,
Nor pause for anything, unless
It may be the police.
—S. E. Kiser

THEY SAY OF THE FOURTH

The Army—Just as dry as any other day.

The Grafter—I've got to let up for one day.

Up in Sing Sing—And they call this liberty!

The Southerner—I don't care if I do, suh.

The Statesman—Why not whoop for me a few times?

The Peanut Man—Bless Liberty, and who wants the next bag?

The Middle West—Good enough day, but we need rain for corn.

The Far Westerner—I'm no patriot if I don't pop some one today!

The Average Boy—My stingy old dad wouldn't gimme but five cents!

The New England Farmer—I guess there's some of that hard cider left.

The Family Cook—Darn them old patriots! Who is to pay for this extra work?

The Easterner—Yes, we know, but it is no longer fashionable to say so much about it.

The Little German Band—We go toot! toot! toot! and then she whas some bad eggs!

The Tolls Repeal Victory

The passage of tolls exemption repeal closes, at least for the time being, another stage in the perpetual fight against privilege. It saves the canal from exploitation. It heads off another subsidy grab.

That is its domestic significance. But back of this, or perhaps it may be said above it, is its international significance, for in spite of the Norris amendment, a device legally without effect, it represents an assurance to the world that the American nation guards jealously its honor and its reputation for good faith. Rather than seem to go back on its bond, rather than to quibble or wriggle or seek defense in legal technicality, it has brushed aside doubts and taken the straight course.

This action, involving a withdrawal from a position hastily taken, a withdrawal in the face of jingoism, has been supported by American opinion, regardless of party. If in a parliamentary sense it is a victory for the President, a victory most creditable to him, it is in a deeper sense a victory of the American people, and we may say especially a victory of and for the Middle West. It is the Middle West which was being chiefly sacrificed to the fancied interests of the two coasts, and it was when the Middle West rose that the fight was won.

In this result the Tribune has an especial satisfaction, for the Tribune began the fighting and has kept up its leadership throughout, conscious of its responsibility to the great mid-empire which has made the Tribune, what it is, and which the Tribune has tried always to serve, to reflect, and truly to represent.—Chicago Tribune (Rep.).

Steel Makers Optimistic

It is evident that the steel makers, although naturally high protectionists, do not share the fear of business calamity and panic which Republican party leaders are endeavoring to make an issue in the coming campaign.

Recently there was a conference of prominent men in the steel industry in New York, and here are some of the expressions which they made regarding the business situation: "I have backed up my judgment that trade is on the mend, that September will see the beginning of substantial trade expansion, with a purchase of 50,000 tons of basic pig iron in the last few days."—A. F. Houston, President of the Luken's Iron & Steel Company, Coatesville, Pa.

"Pessimistic trade sentiment in the East is the real cause of depression. It is ridiculously absurd, for fundamental conditions are excellent and all the legislation of legislative threats in the world can not overcome that fact. Midsummer or early fall will witness the beginning of a remarkable and inevitable trade expansion."—W. F. Thomas, President of the Briar Hill Steel Company, Youngstown, O.

"The United States is bound to prosper. If we are careful of our business and husband our resources, if we have courage and persistence, we will come out all right. I said six months ago that, in my opinion, we were approaching the door of prosperity. Do not forget that we are six months nearer to that door."—Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of Board, United States Steel Corporation.

Bright Prospects Ahead

From the managers of every railway system west of the Mississippi River comes news of the most brilliant prospects in production of the farms and orchards, and not a system in all the region from the Canada line to the Gulf and the Mexican border but estimates a notable increase in number of cars that will be required to transport the agricultural tonnage which is to be exchanged for the cash that returns to the farmers to enrich them and benefit the entire country.

Pessimists may seek to dwarf the result to the country at large, but facts and precedents are all against them.

Large harvests, ample supplies of money this autumn in the United States, prices as yet in many of our products not materially lower, surely will place the inhabitants of the farming districts in position to purchase largely of the outputs of our manufacturing.

We have now the testimony of the heads of the railway systems as to what this tonnage means to their roads.

It necessitates the employment of more men, the purchase of more cars, of more motive power, and largely increased supplies of steel rails and all other material that enters into the transportation business.—Washington Post.

NATION OWES MUCH TO ROBERT MORRIS

"Banker of the Revolution" Furnished Large Funds With Which to Carry On The Struggle for Freedom.

ROBERT MORRIS, although an Englishman by birth, might be called the "banker of the revolution," for it was he who on several occasions was called upon to find money for the army. When Congress fled from Philadelphia to Baltimore, Mr. Morris was one of the committee that stayed behind. Washington had been forced to retreat before the enemy, and was camped on the opposite shores of the Delaware. The British were able to obtain accurate information as to his position, but he could not do likewise with regard to theirs through lack of funds. So he wrote Robert Morris, asking for money, and the letter was brought him by a confidential messenger, reaching him after practically all the inhabitants had left Philadelphia for some safer place. Depressed, he did not know what to do, until he casually met an acquaintance, a friend, who asked for the news.

Mr. Morris told him of needing money, and added: "Your security is to be my note and my honor." "Robert, thou shalt have it," replied the man, and the money was secured and sent General Washington. In 1780 Robert Morris instituted a bank in Philadelphia, with others, the object of which was to establish credit by means of which congress could be furnished with means for relieving the army. He headed the list of subscriptions with £10,000, to which others added sufficient to total $350,000. By this means 3,000,000 rations of provisions and 300 hogheads of rum were procured and forwarded to the needy army. Upon still another occasion Washington wrote him that the military stores were woefully depleted and asked for aid. There was no ammunition but that in the men's boxes, which was wet. All the lead possible had been secured, even the spouts of the houses.

Under such circumstances it was but natural that Mr. Morris should be hard put to it to find a way to supply the lead. However, he was a guest at an entertainment given by the Spanish minister, and upon being pressed by his host for the cause of his apparent worry, showed him the letter from Washington. His host then told him that one of his ships had just arrived at the wharf with 90 tons of lead, which she brought as ballast. "You can have my half of this fortunate supply," he said, "and there are the owners of the other half!" He secured the lead, set one hundred men to work that same night, and before morning had sent a supply of bullets to the depleted army.

NOT THE SECOND OF JULY

John Adams Wrong in His Idea of When Nation's Birth Should Be Celebrated.

Said John Adams to his wife Abigail in a letter written a hundred and thirty years ago: "The second of July will be the most memorable epoch in the history of America. I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival."

Time and circumstance have confirmed the spirit of the Adams prophecy, but for another day. It is the glorious Fourth instead of the fateful Second that we celebrate. Richard Henry Lee's resolution "that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states," was passed July 2, 1776. The elaborate Declaration of Independence, wherein Thomas Jefferson drafted the why and wherefore of it all, was accepted two days later.

Among the instruments of celebration recommended by Mr. Adams in the letter already cited were "shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations." Orators are not in the list. In the old-fashioned Fourth they were starred next to the cannon which awoke patriotic echoes at midnight of July 3 and to the "fantasies" whose midday parade appealed to the elated spirit of Yankee humor. This decline in occasional oratory is to be regretted.

The modern Fourth of July, it is painful to believe, involves more of infantile delight in a tremendous noise than of serious reflection as to what the day stands for. It is an occasion, too, of greater annual slaughter than of Bunker Hill or many another Revolutionary battle. In 1903 the day's dead were 466, the injured 3,983. In 1904 the number of dead fell to 183, but the wounded were 3,986.

TO TREAT INJURIES INCIDENT TO DAY

Wounds Should Be Washed Thoroughly While Waiting for Doctor to Come and Inject the Antitoxin That Can Save.

WHILE the children amass their noisy tokens of patriotism and wheedle their fathers into the purchase of deadly fire spitting devices, mothers set their teeth to endure long hours of torture for the safety of their little ones, writes Dr. L. K. Hirschberg in Farm and Fireside. Little by little the delights of the safe and sane Fourth are being recognized, but in the meantime, while the crackers bang and blaze, it is a comfort to know that doctors have learned to deal so effectively with one of the dangers attendant upon the Fourth of July—lockjaw—that there is no need for the disease to result in death. Through lack of information, more than a thousand people in the United States die from it each year, most of them farmers and country-bred youngsters.

The reason lockjaw is so often associated with Fourth of July accidents lies in the fact that wounds made by firecrackers, skyrocket and blank cartridges are commonly ragged and contused, and so afford a favorable soil for the germs. It is known also that wounds where free air and oxygen cannot enter, as is the case with those made by rusty nails or those accompanied by deep tearing and those in which dirt has been ground into the flesh, gunshot and powder burns, are most likely to be followed by the disease. The first symptoms of lockjaw usually appear from three days to three weeks after the injury. Home remedies and slabs of bacon hasten it. The earlier they appear, the more serious the attack.

Fortunately, it is always possible to prevent lockjaw, provided no delay follows the injury. The method is to have a doctor inject antitoxin—poison antidote—into the patient's flesh. This kills the poisons as fast as they are given off by the lockjaw germs, which are a veritable mine of poisons at the site of the sore. If treatment is delayed until lockjaw symptoms appear there is little hope of cure. It is then too late.

During the interval which may elapse before a doctor can arrive it is advisable to wash the wound thoroughly with soap and water, and to flood it before binding it up with common peroxide of hydrogen. After this has been done the wound should be covered, but on no account use a handkerchief or an old rag, but get a strip of antiseptic bandage. A package of antiseptic bandage should always be in readiness in every household. A clean, open wound which bleeds freely is little likely to harbor the germs of lockjaw.

The light and air and oxygen striking into it kill them, and the flowing blood washes them out. In all such cases, unless the flow of blood is excessive, it is well to make no effort to stop it. It will cease of itself in a few moments.

The use of such homely remedies as bacon and spider webs to stop the flow is foolhardy and frequently fatal. The average spider web, particularly if it comes from a cellar or a stable, is alive with germs. But no matter how small the wound may be it is well to have a doctor dress it. He alone is capable of washing it as it should be, washed and of estimating the likelihood of infection. His fee is money well invested. It may buy only insurance against a long and terrible illness, but then again it may buy insurance against death.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

Far in the east where morning gleams And spreads its glorious light in streams The early birds unite in song, And echoes glad their notes prolong.

I hear the carols glad and sweet; From mount to mount echoes repeat And roll out to the western sea, Liberty, sweet liberty.

The answering tones of bells roll on— Lexington, Concord and Lexington. And Charlestown bells all listeners thrill With Bunker Hill! Bunker Hill! From Harlem and Yorktown come reply— Fourth of July! Fourth of July!

Ring bells! Ring bells! With joyous swells, Peace and good will your music tells, While o'er the land booms forth with roar— One country, one flag, forevermore.

God grant our country may retain Her high position without stain, In peace and virtue's triumphs may she lead.

The greatest prize of victory to earn.—John Livingston Hunt in Boston Herald.

Penrose's Tactics
In Pennsylvania the old guard has routed the Progressive Republicans and captured the organization completely, and Boies Penrose, high priest among reactionaries, has been nominated for the Senate. Penrose defeated J. Benjamin Dimmick, Progressive Republican, and a clean, upright citizen, by a two to one majority. In a total vote in the Republican primaries of about 300,000, Penrose had practically 100,000 majority. So the old standpatters are in control in Pennsylvania so far as the Republican organization is in control. What has frightened the Penrose regulars, however, is the fact that in a State which gave Roosevelt a majority of more than 500,000 in 1904, the total Republican vote, both regular and Progressive, in the recent primaries, was only a little more than 300,000, of which Penrose is only sure of about 200,000. In addition to this the Progressives have nominated Gifford Pinchot for the Senate, and T. R. will do all in his power to elect him, and in Representative A. Mitchell Palmer the Democrats have named a man who will not only command the Democratic vote, but tens of thousands of votes of honest Progressive Republicans, who can not stand Penrose and his reactionary methods and who realize that Pinchot is not an important factor in the situation. But the point is that should the Republicans win it will be a stand pat victory and a triumph for the old guard.

Penrose, who now under the popular election plan must go before the voters instead of trusting to the organization, which he has controlled, to put him over, has adopted tactics which is making even the staid old Pennsylvanians, used to almost every sort of political trick, burst the buttons of their waistcoats with laughter. Penrose, among other things, has become a pulpit orator, and once or twice every Sunday delivers a political onslaught in some Philadelphia church. The burden of one of these Penrose "sermons" is the calamity howl, or more properly speaking, the calamity lie. He preaches business depression, ruin and disaster. The Senator received a boomerang the other day which well illustrates the absurdities of his statements. Becoming specific one day in his statement, he declared that the Sharples Separator Company, a big concern of West Chester, Pa., would be forced to close down its plant and move to Germany because of the Democratic tariff law. Now, the Sharples people are ultra-stand pat Republicans; their factory was one of the concerns which, it was charged in 1908, threatened its employees with dismissal if they failed to vote for Taft; but they are nevertheless good business men. Not long ago the Sharples Company issued a circular which, without intending to do so, of course, gave the lie direct to Penrose. This circular said:

"Our factory is now running until 10 o'clock each night in order to make quick delivery. Business with us is very good, which is true of a large number of dealers who handle our line."

Since then the Pennsylvania political pulpit orator has had nothing to say about the Sharples Company moving its plant to Germany, but he has continued to make assertions equally as far from the truth.

Rabies—Hydrophobia

The general quarantines against dogs on account of rabies that the Pennsylvania State Livestock Sanitary Board have in force occasion many inquiries, therefore the following from Dr. C. J. Marshall, State Veterinarian, is timely and interesting: "Rabies is a disease that affects all warm-blooded animals. In man it is called hydrophobia. Recently a child died showing clinical symptoms of hydrophobia, the head of the dog that bit the child had been submitted to the laboratory of the Board, a diagnosis positive of rabies established and the interested persons notified. The Pasteur treatment was recommended but it was not administered. Exposed animals were destroyed or quarantined."

"A great factor in the spread of rabies is the stray dog, and the number of these animals should be materially reduced by proper enforcement of the dog tax law of 1911, which work is in the hands of the assessors, tax collectors and constables."

In conclusion the State Veterinarian desires to make known to the public that if the head of any animal that dies or is destroyed, suspected of being affected with rabies, is severed from the carcass near the shoulders, promptly forwarded to the laboratory of the State Livestock Sanitary Board, 39th Street & Woodland Avenue, Philadelphia, plainly marked with the name and address of the sender, a careful examination will be made and a report submitted free of cost. All positive cases are investigated by the Board and exposed animals destroyed or placed under quarantine. General quarantines are established only when all other methods have failed to check the spread of infection in a given locality.

RELIGIOUS CO-OPERATION

An Interdenominational Co-operative Board of Religious Work at our State Tubercular Sanatoria, at Mont Alto, Cresson and Hamburg respectively, has been created, organized, and legally incorporated within the present year, whose duty and province is to provide permanently an adequate Christian Ministry to all Protestant people resident in the above institutions.

Necessity has ever been the mother of invention. The lack of religious ministrations in our State Tubercular Sanatoria led to the plan which originated in and has successfully been carried into effect by the Interdenominational Church of Christ of the Mont Alto Sanatorium resulting in the creation of a board of eighteen ministers and laymen, who on the solicitation of the pastor of Mont Alto Church, have willingly consented to lay down denominational bars for Christ's sake, and united their efforts to provide the much-needed broad, practical, religious ministry to all people of all denominations, who are by necessity brought together into one Christian body at these places where denominational efforts are not practical.

They are the Rev. O. C. Roth D. D., President, and Rev. W. H. Washington, D. D., Vice President, Chambersburg, Pa.; Rev. Will M. Seligman, Secretary, Sanitarium, Pa.; Ralph I. Diehl, Treasurer, Harrisburg, Pa.;

Rev. B. H. Hart, Rev. H. Nelson Bassler, Rev. Harry B. King, Harrisburg, Pa.; Rev. William L. McEwan, D. D., Rev. A. D. Robinson, D. D., Rev. J. K. McChukin, D. D., of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Rev. C. C. Hays, D. D., Johnstown, Pa.; Rev. J. W. Meminger, D. D., Lancaster, Pa.; Rev. J. P. Ohl, D. D., Rev. George D. Adams, D. D., Rev. J. Wesley Burns, D. D., Rev. D. Dr. Edwin Heyl Delk, D. D., Rosselle, D. D., Philadelphia, and Rev. Griffin W. Bull, Scranton, Pa.

In the event of the completion of these three sanatoria which will be early in 1915, there will be a constant army of over two thousand tubercular patients there, over eighty per cent. of the number in the advanced stages. Some are Christians, some are not. Both classes need above their physical care, spiritual direction, by broad-minded, sympathetic, spiritual ministers, who will share their burdens, which are many and varied and point them to the Christ.

These ministers need conveniently located, comfortably housed and a proper salary.

This board is created to provide religious care exclusively and its members take upon themselves this important work, and ask of every Protestant in the commonwealth, hearty financial and moral assistance. You are asked to give either directly by a personal contribution to the treasurer, or through your respective church which is asked to arrange for a special offering from all its members at the earliest possible date, for the purpose of securing pastors homes.

For the annual support of pastors an offering will be asked of all Protestant churches in the State each year on Tuberculosis Sunday, the first Sunday in December, when the ministers in response to the call of the State Board of Health preach on Tuberculosis and distribute their literature for the general information of the public on the White Plague.

All moneys must be paid to the treasurer, Ralph I. Diehl, of the East End Bank, Harrisburg, Pa., where the funds are deposited.

This advance step on the part of the Representative Protestant Christianity of our great commonwealth is approved by the Philadelphia organization of Church Federation. It ought to meet with general favor, and merit the commendation and hearty financial and moral support of every Protestant Christian in Pennsylvania.

OLD AGE AND YOUTH IN FREEDOM'S FIGHT

Signers of the Declaration of Independence Represented All Classes of the People and Were of All Ages.

THE men who gathered together early in July, 1776, to consider the question of independence represented many professions and ages. Of the 56 men who constituted all of the signers of the Declaration, 24 were lawyers, 14 agriculturists, four physicians, one a minister, one a manufacturer, nine merchants, and three who had been educated for the ministry, but who later followed other professions. Although at the time of signing the Declaration the majority of the men were between forty and sixty years of age, several were in the early thirties, and two forty-seven. The youngest signer was Edward Rutledge of North Carolina, who was not twenty-seven until about four months after the signing. The other was Thomas Lynch, Jr., who celebrated his twenty-seventh birthday three days after the signing. Mr. Lynch was drowned at sea before he was thirty. On the other hand, Benjamin Franklin was seventy at the time of signing. Equally interesting are the ages of the men when they died. Three lived to be over ninety, 14 over sixty, 11 over fifty, and the remainder, with the exception of Lynch, lived to be over forty-four.

METHODS TO AVOID LOCKJAW

Mothers Will Do Well to Keep These Instructions in Their Memory.

Surgeon General Wyman issued the following instructions for the prevention of tetanus (lockjaw) following injuries from Fourth of July blank cartridges, pistols, toy cannon, firecrackers, etc.:

"In addition to giving a preventive dose of tetanus antitoxin, it should be an invariable procedure to lay open all Fourth of July wounds. All foreign matter, dead or badly injured flesh, should be removed, an anesthetic being used to prevent pain and proper measures taken to limit bleeding."

"After the wound has been thoroughly cleaned it should be swabbed out with strong carbolic acid of at least 25 per cent, followed by a washing with 95 per cent alcohol to prevent further action of the acid."

"After the wound has been cauterized in this way it should be thoroughly washed out with a bichloride of mercury solution, packed with gauze, and dressed every day."

"As results of the celebrations of Independence day in this country during the last five years there have been 768 cases of lockjaw, with 721 deaths. Of these deaths, 692 were traceable to blank cartridges. But the number of deaths from this direct cause has been reduced from 123 in 1903 to 52 in 1907."

SOME WRINKLES OF RAM'S HORN BROWN

Philosopher Delivers Himself of a Few Gems of Thought and Humor Engendered by the Nation's Natal Day.

WHAT the country will be after a while will depend upon what we are teaching the children now.

The nation that forgets its past will never have much of a future.

The Puritan came to this country more than a hundred years ahead of the mule and did all the kicking until the mule arrived.

Without the dreamers of yesterday the world would not have been as wide awake as it is today.

If there is a day in the year when we have a God-given right to swell up and brag on ourselves it is the Fourth of July.

The man who is not proud that he is an American when he hears the rockets sizz and sees the plowheels go is a disgrace to his sex.

Without castles in the air there would never have been any palaces on the ground.

Let us not forget the Puritan mothers. They not only endured all that the Pilgrim fathers endured, but also endured the Pilgrim fathers.

What we would put into the life of the nation we must first put into the mind of the child.

Every boy should be taught that he must sign his own declaration of independence, and fight his own revolutionary war.

We are what we are today because we did unto our neighbor what he wanted to do unto us—and did it first.

A BOSTON DOG

The Cat—I heard 'em hollering "mad dog" at you awhile ago. Are you mad?

The Dog—No; only irritated.

FOURTH OF JULY.

Though contented we roam all the rest of the year
Amid palaces over the foam,
O, there is one day when American hearts
Turn fondly to country and home!
The ivy clad abbey—and castles and towers
Are seen through a tear in the eye
When the calendar points to that glorious date,
The Fourth of July.

We know from the pines on the Kennebec's banks
To the live oaks, in mantles of gray,
On the Indian river, the land of the free
Is everywhere keeping the day.
From the walls of the mansion and cottage alike
In the breezes of summertime fly
The star studded folds of the red, white and blue,
On Fourth of July.

So let cannons and cracks and pistols and drums
And phynchels and rockets that soar,
With booming and bursting and rattle and bang
And sputter and whiz and uproar,
Proclaim we are glad we were born in a land
The best that is under the sky
And are proud of that truly American day,
The Fourth of July.
—Minna Irving in Leslie's Weekly.

Electrical Fourth.

The proposed substitution of electrical illuminations on the Fourth of July in place of the old fashion of fireworks is an excellent one, asserts the New York World. It will be not only safer and safer but more largely enjoyable by the greater part of population. Moreover, it has wonderful possibilities. Even in the distorted freaks of electrical designs used in advertising we can perceive the chances of developing a really new art out of the light that electricity has put at our disposal.

There is no limit to the variety of colors, shades and tints that can be produced. Consequently if skill and taste and a fairly liberal allowance of money be at the command of the committee having charge of the celebration it would be quite practicable to produce in different parts of the city a series of illuminations that would be something more than a mere novelty. Moreover, a scheme of this kind once well begun will advance and improve with the years. By and by New York's Fourth of July illuminations might become as world-famous as once were those of St. Peter's at Rome on Easter night.
